From the Paris Gazette, dated Sept. 23.

Naples, August 29.

ALL is in great Confusion here, since what passed between Cardinal Pignatelli Archbishop of Naples and the Royal Officers, on Occasion of the Monitories which he caused to be published against the Judges and Officers of the Vicariat. The Archbishop had claimed, that the Woman convicted of poisoning her Husband, and another who was seized for preparing and vending slow Poisons, should be brought back into the Prisons of the Archiepiscopal Court, because they were taken in a Place contiguous to the Church of St. Magdalene. Upon this Count Daun caused the Collateral Council to be extraordinarily assembled the 16th of this Month, notwithstanding it was a Festival; and the Judges of the Vicariat being sent for, ordered that the first of the Women should forthwith be tried. She had Council assigned to plead for her, besides the Council ordinarily allowed to the Poor; she confessed her Crime; Sentence of Death was given against her; she was carried to Baya and there executed; and her Head was brought hither and placed over against the Hospital of St. Magdalene, where the Crime had been committed. After the Term of the Monitory was expired, Cardinal Pignatelli caused a Sentence of Excommunication to be affixed against the Judges of the Vicariat. This was done by the Curfours, who went armed to the Court where the Tribunal of the Vicariat is usually held, threatening the Sbirri who kept Guard near the Prisons; and the said Sentence of Excommunication was affixed in several Places. The 20th Count Daun assembled the Collateral, and they sat till two a Clock the next Morning. That Morning before Day, 600 Grenadiers, 200 Germans and 200 Spaniards, invested the Archiepiscopal Palace, and conducted thither the Fiscal and three other Officers who had signed the Sentence, and the Curfours who had affixed it. The Gates of the Palace being shut, they waited till the Church Doors were opened; and then the Soldiers entering it, went and took the Vicar-General and other Canons or Officers of the Archbishop whom they put into a Coach, before which the Clerks and Curfours were made to walk on Foot: They were embarked, and conducted to Terracina, and charged not to return into the Kingdom. Hereupon a Courier was dispatched to Rome, whence he is to proceed to Vienna. Cardinal Pignatelli has likewise dispatched one, to inform the Pope of this Affair; which seems the more difficult, because the Publick being alarmed by a Practice so horrid as Poisoning, by which they believe a great Number has perished, extremely applaud the Conduct of their Magistrates. The Tribunals assembled last Week, and the Elect of the People read a Letter from Vienna, by which one of the Ministers of that Court acquainted them, that most of the Favours desired by their Ambassadors had been granted. In particular we hear, that the Benefices in the Royal Gift shall not be conferred on any but Natives, and as for the rest Care shall be taken to hinder their being possessed by Forreigners: That as to Offices, whereas formerly there were in the Council 16 Ministers Natives and 8 Forreigners, the first shall be increased to 18; and that in the Royal Chamber, and in the Collateral, the Number of Natives shall always exceed that of Forreigners. The Cognizance of criminal Affairs is likewise restored to the City, except Crimes that deserve Death. But as to the Succession of Fiefs, down as far as the fifth Degree, even in the Collateral Line, it has been signified that this Favour ought to be deserved by some extraordinary Supply. Upon this the Tribunals have caused a Memorial to be drawn up of the Immense Sum which the Kingdom has furnished since the Revolution, amounting to several Millions, representing at the same time that they hope Regard will be had to their Services; by which they conceive they have deserved at least the Preservation of their Antient Privileges.

Rome, Sept. 2. The 30th the Marquis de Prié dispatched a Courier to Naples on Occasion of the Differences which had happened between Cardinal Pignatelli and the Royal Ministers, touching the Ecclesiastical Immunity. Upon the first News which came by an express Courier of the Sentence of Excommunication fulminated by Cardinal Pignatelli against the Judges of the Vicariat and some others, after which his Vicar-General, Fiscal, Chancellor, Curfours and others were seized by Order of Count Daun and transported to Terracina, the Pope caused a Congregation of 16 Cardinals to be held in his Presence, and they sat till late in the Night. They discoursed in the same Congregation of what had happened in Sicily on Account of the like Excommunications, in Consequence of which the Archbishop of Messina and the Bishop of Catania had been ordered to depart Sicily, and they are arrived here. They also deliberated about the Excommunication denounced by the Bishop of Mantua against some German Officers, for taking a Deserter out of a Church; as likewise about the Sentences given in Savoy against the Censures of the Bishop of Casal. The publick Rumour is, that vigorous Resolutions were passed in this Congregation, for supporting the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction: But we learn since by Couriers dispatched from Naples, that the Collateral and the principal Judges had given Order for seizing all the Estate of Cardinal Pignatelli, even the Revenues of his Archbishoprick and of an Abbey which he holds; and thus the Affair is carried on both Sides to the last Extremity.

London, September 23.

Last Night arrived from Holland the Mail of Friday last.

From the Imperial Camp at Muhlberg, Sept. 22. Within these 2 or 3 Days we received certain Advice, that the Enemy with a great Number of Troops were marching up towards the Black Forrest; that another Body of them was at Offenburg; and another in the Lines of Lauterbourg. This Morning came Advice from General Vaubonne, that the French with 52 Battallions and 62 Squadrons were approaching Holtzhausen within 2 Leagues of Fribourg: And just now comes a Lieutenant of the Regiment of Schonborn, sent by the said General, with an Account, that the 20th in the Afternoon about 5 a Clock the Enemy attack'd his Lines before Fribourg, and by the Side of the Chartreuse broke into them; that he was obliged to retire to Rotweyl, and proposed to retire further to Holle Graben.

Frankfort, Sept. 24. Yesterday we received by an Express the unwelcome News, that the 20th Instant in the Evening the Enemy attacked our Lines before Fribourg, and obliged General Vaubonne to retire, after he had ordered 12 Battallions to throw themselves into Fribourg; but that the hindmost of those Battallions was cut off by the French; and that another would have undergone the like Fortune, had they not forced their Way through the Enemy. We know not yet the Particulars; but 'tis said the Regiment of Jachtenheim, belonging to the Circle of Franconia, was quite ruined; and that another Regiment suffered very much. General Vaubonne has written, that he was retiring to Hollen-Graben, and from thence should retire further if the Enemy should think fit to pursue him. The 22d 30 Squadrons and 10 Battallions were detached from the Camp at Muhlberg to reinforce him at Rotweyl.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Sept. 23.
 From the Imperial Camp at Muhlberg, Sept. 22. Just now a Lieutenant is arrived Express from General Vaubonne, with the ill News, that the 20th towards the Evening the Enemy attacked the new Line which our Men had made near Fribourg, and forced it near the Convent of the Carthusians, after some Resistance by 14 Battallions which guarded it. A Regiment of the Troops of Franconia consisting of two Battallions, was almost intirely ruined in the Action; 11 other Battallions threw themselves into Fribourg; and the 14th, namely that of Arnau forced a Passage Sword in Hand through the Enemy's Troops, and got off most of them to a place of Safety. General Vaubonne, who was encamp'd thereabouts with his Troops, seeing he could not support those who were posted to defend the said Line, retired toward Hollen Graben. Just now Prince Eugene has detached towards Rotweil 10 Battallions, 4 Regiments of Horse, and 2 of Hussars.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Sept. 30.
 Muhlberg, Sept. 22. Prince Eugene of Savoy's Army, and that of the Marshal de Villars, are separated by the Rivers Murch and Kintzig. But the Enemy's Army being divided into three Bodies, one of which is in the Lines of Lauterbourg, and the other near Offenbourg, 'tis hoped the Imperialists may attack one of them with Success.

Dublin, Sept. 15. On Thursday last the Lord Mayor of this City sent a Summons to the several Aldermen to meet, in order to proceed to a new Choice of a Lord Mayor for the succeeding Year, and in pursuance of the late Resolution of the Council he named these, Sir William Fownes and Aldermen Constantine and Mason, being the same that were in Nomination before; but twenty of the Aldermen insisted on a previous Question touching the first in Nomination, and offered some Objections to him, upon which the Lord Mayor having dissolved the Court, nothing was determined. His Lordship has petitioned the Council, who are this Day met thereupon.
